

The Howlers had different stories about why the Great Winter, as the Pleistocene Ice Age is called, happened. Some spoke of a spiritual agreement between the tribe and... the wolves! I mean, before the beginning of the ice age, wolves lived in the forests, where they hunted either roe deer, or deer, or other animals. And they already had their own cultural habits. They lived in packs, they had their own language, and they had their own ideas and values. But when the ice age came, the wolves could no longer live in the forests, but, of course, they could not live in the steppes, and in the prairies, and in other plains, because there were too many roe deer.
