If you have any questions please feel free to contact me at yahoogail@yahoo.comQ: What is a better word than 'cost' to describe the cost of paying for something, and the cost of downloading something? I am creating an app that is a content downloader. I would like to be able to describe the cost of downloading content, and the cost of paying for content. The words that come to mind are 'cost' and 'price'. But those are both a little bit generic, and don't have the distinction between paying and downloading. Does anyone know a better word I could use? A: You might consider either tariff, or cost or rate or price. The cost of an item or service is defined as: 1. The money you must pay for something; the amount of money it will cost: the expenses of the trip. The rate of a product or service is defined as: 1. The amount or rate of something paid or received: the rate of pay. So either of these would be a suitable word to use. D [35]{}, 2681 (1987). F. Abe [et al.]{} \[CDF Collaboration\], Phys. Rev.
