The first ever Steampunk adventure game! The scope of our game is really quite massive. We want to make sure our players get the most out of our game by creating content that is both fun and appropriate, both visually and for the subject matter. This is the first game I have made that I believe to be in the top tier of RPG games on the market today. We believe, what we have created is something that the gaming community will enjoy, because of that we have put in considerable amounts of time and effort into it and we hope you do too. We have fun stories and lore to tell which we hope will interest you as much as it interests us. Our goal is to put in the time and effort to develop the lore of our game so that each new release is just a continuation of what we have already done. So, with all that being said, enjoy our little creation and come out to play with us! (We will be planning small updates to the game from time to time.) A: I wanted to add a little video that I made to show off the game's unique style and mechanics. There are no weapons or monsters, only steam powered devices. A: If you want a more realist style, here's one that illustrates the difference between normal fantasy and steampunk fantasy. I'm not trying to promote this one over yours, just wanted to make this point. I just noticed it's got a similar aesthetic to the original Legend of Zelda. Q: How to refer to QThread from Qt's thread handling mechanism i use below code but the thread goes on waiting in qthread.qthread_start() but not performed :- QThread *thread = new QThread(); connect(thread,SIGNAL(started()),this,SLOT(resume())); connect(this,SIGNAL(pause()),thread,SLOT(pause())); connect(this,SIGNAL(resume()),thread,SLOT(resume())); //this code is not performed thread->start(); void MyClass::resume() { ui->label->setText("Hello world"); } void MyClass::pause() { } A: You need to connect thread's finished() signal to MyClass::resume().  (Kris Allen and Paul McDonald song) "Fall For You" is a song recorded by American vocalist Kris Allen and British singer-songwriter Paul McDonald. The song was written by Allen, Ryan Tedder, William Phillips, Robert Taylor and Valeri Mambo, and produced by Jeff Trott and Tom Elmhirst. The song was released through RCA Records on August 31, 2014 as the third single for Johnson's eponymous debut studio album (2014). "Fall For You" was produced using analogue sound technology and features notable instrumentation. As his lyrics center on a complex relationship, McDonald included a "funk-infused" R&B influence, while Allen interprets the romantic song melodically. The single debuted at number 50 on the US Billboard Hot 100 and gained success in certain territories around the world. "Fall For You" received positive reviews from critics who praised its production and the singer's vocal performance. An accompanying music video for the single was shot by Marc Webb in Los Angeles, California. The video was premiered on August 31, 2014 through VEVO under the title of "Fall For You - Infographic". Background and release After becoming the runner-up of the fifth season of American Idol in November 2012, Allen began recording his debut studio album Johnson. The album was recorded in New York City and parts of Los Angeles, California during the latter months of 2012. Production of the album took place at The Gretta & Hammond, The Village, MAM and More studios in the New York City and Montreal Recording Studios in Canada. The album was produced by Allen himself alongside the likes of Ryan Tedder, Gal Grace, The Messengers, William Phillips, Nick Launay and Jennifer Decilveo. Kenneth "Ken" Gregorio, who was formerly a production co-ordinator for American Idol, was also part of Johnson's creative team. The album features collaborations with successful artists and seasoned songwriters like Akon, Charlie Puth and OneRepublic's Ryan Tedder. In May 2013, it was announced through Ryan Tedder's Twitter account that the song, "Tonight", had been stolen and released online. To prevent similar thefts in the future, "Tonight" (which was taken without permission) was replaced by a new track, "Fall For You". It was sent to pop stations that day, but it was also available on iTunes for a week before it was released as the third official single from the album on August 31 that Guide This invention relates to test sets. More particularly, this invention relates to a method and apparatus for a quick and simple method of testing a telephone line connection. Currently, when a user of a telephone connected to a line has a problem with the line, such as a dropped call or poor quality, the user must obtain service from the local telephone company. The user must often go to a public telephone to contact a telephone company service representative to have the problem fixed. The user then returns home to troubleshoot the problem. It would be preferable for the user to call the telephone company directly to have service restored or replaced as needed. Currently, there are several types of test sets that can be used to test telephone lines. These test sets have been developed to check customer lines. These test sets use an external device that is connected to the telephone line to test the line. As is well known in the art, these external devices or test sets are used to check for a variety of line conditions including cross-talk, bridging, voltage drop, impedance, etc. Typically, an external device is in communication with the telephone line through a two- or four-wire bridged telephone line interface. It is also known to use a simple adapter which is easy and inexpensive to acquire and that utilizes a four-wire connection for connecting test leads to the telephone line. One such test lead adaptor comprises a test lead, a piece of flat metal, and another test lead. Traditionally, in order to run such a test, the user has to obtain special instruments from the telephone company to determine if the line is dropping. If the line has dropped, the user then goes home and attempts to determine where the problem lies. A need exists in the art for a method and apparatus for testing a telephone line that would utilize phone company equipment to determine if the telephone line is in service.
